

Call for Editors

pnd – rethinking planning offers external persons the opportunity to edit single issues on a thematic focus. We welcome submissions for thematic editions in the field of spatial and planning science as well as sustainable development in planning practice and research. Thematic proposals can be submitted at any time. Review and feedback will take place within two months. For the publication year 2024, proposals must be received by 31.01.2023.

Contributions will be collected via open calls. The editorial team, which will include at least one editor from the Department of Planning Theory and Urban Development at RWTH Aachen University, will be responsible for selecting the contributions and organising the review process. The editors are available for consultation and assistance throughout the entire process.

Submissions for thematic editions can be sent by email to neu-denken@pt.rwth-aachen.de.

Blog what/next: Call for Contributions/Authors

In addition, pnd – rethinking planning offers the opportunity to submit proposals for creative contributions to our blog what/next. Here, topics can be presented quickly and effectively with the help of various media. pnd - what/next thus provides a framework for short texts, podcasts and videos. We are particularly pleased about submissions from young authors and young researchers and welcome short contributions about exciting theses.

If you are interested in contributing to the pnd - rethinking planning platform, please contact: neu-denken@pt.rwth-aachen.de.

Please note that the work is done on a voluntary basis and is not remunerated.
